Stilson Parking Lot and Wilson Boat Ramp Access

Teton County, Wyoming – Construction has begun on the Stilson Transit Center, a significant investment in our community's transportation future. Located at the northwest corner of Highway 22 and 390, the center will serve as a regional mobility hub, improving START Bus service, reducing traffic on the West Bank, and supporting a more sustainable, connected Teton County.

We recognize that the Stilson lot is also used for overflow parking for the Wilson boat ramp, and we've received questions about access during construction. Parking at Stilson will remain available throughout the project in various locations.

While the location of open spaces will shift during different construction phases, there will always be designated parking areas, clearly marked with signage.

We appreciate your patience and flexibility as we build this critical public infrastructure. The Stilson Transit Center is a long-term solution designed to serve residents, visitors, and our environment for years to come.
